THANKS

Our thanks go to the founders of "Painting a New World" (Agnes and André Chatelain).
Thanks to them we were able to create a mural that speaks of peace in schools.

Here are the pictures of the project:

The GABRIEL LISETTE Secondary School

This is one of the oldest private high schools in the capital; it is located on a highway under construction at the entrance to N'Djamena.

We concluded our mural and named it "Crossroads of peace," four students of diverse origins are coming to study together despite their differences in an atmosphere of peace. The calabash containing millet and school supplies, the dove above, the whole symbolizes peace in schools.

The three artists who completed the mural supported by PNMW.
